ABSTRACT

Use of mother tongue as a medium of instruction or as a language instruction is very important factor in primary education. Language instruction is a basic requirement for all types and levels of education. Education of a child begins through language and continues through language. To make learning effortless and natural, the child should be taught through the language he is familiar with in the language through which he forms concepts, through which he can think creatively, and which helps him in socialization. Instruction in mother tongue helps in his search for self-affirmation, establishes group identity, meets the natural urge for cultural rootedness and helps to avoid fanaticism. It brings the child into harmonious relationships with his environment and maximizes the opportunities offered by the early learning experiences. So it can be said that, unlike all other subjects taught in schools which are concerned with that aspect only, mother tongue is concerned with almost every aspect and need of human life.

Key words: mother tongue, language, instruction.
